

"I think it's safe to say that when we first set out to make this song, we were all thinking 'Emmy!' The other thing we were thinking was, 'Hey! Here's this young up-and-comer, Justin Timberlake, who ... could clearly use a break.'"

Led Zeppelin reuniting?

According to NME.com, Robert Plant, left, is in talks with Jimmy Page, John Paul Jones and late drummer John Bonham's son, Jason, about the possibility of getting the band back together. They'll hold a press conference Wednesday. METRO/DR

The bling, the glamour, the grunge

The VMAs red carpet: a Vegas wildcard

STYLE. The VMAs are notorious for being an awards show where musicians could show off their creative, wilder side with their outfits. But at this year's VMAs, those walking the red carpet at the Palms in Las Vegas (through the casino, no less) seemed to have stashed the chaps in the closet. Vegas glamour reigned last night. Kanye West sported a tux, Rihanna and Alicia Keys showed off their toned shoulders in tight, strapless evening gowns, and Paris Hilton squeezed into Dolce and Gabbana. R&B and hip-hop stars like Chamillionaire, Chris Brown and Ludacris dazzled with more bling than the Vegas skyline. But to their "Casino Royale" style came some down-market nickel slots: Kat Von D, Travis Barker from Blink 182 and Adam Levine from Maroon 5 looked like they just left the buffet line.
